LESSONS LEARNED AND NEXT STEPS for 2018-2019

- Attendance is being very carefully monitored and is tracked daily by PDO. Strategies are in place including attendance contracts, home visits, meetings with parents, rewards etc. PP pupils are a particular focus, and we are very proactive in involving parents, carers, and support agencies as required. Despite this, PP attendance fell in 2017-18. There are a number of reasons for this:
 - a family of 3 CLA pupils were on our roll, despite being out of the area, and Holy Cross had to wait to be informed until they could be removed
 - one pupil had significant mental health and SEN issues and was unable to attend school regularly
 - one pupil had personal health issues meaning they were unavoidably off school long termNew systems in place for 2018-19 (weekly attendance awards, attendance panels, tutor group tracking) have yet to become established and show impact, but are very likely to address many of these issues, but attendance for PP pupils is a priority.
- Low level misbehaviour was logged and tracked more stringently in 2017-18, which could explain the increase in incidents involving PP pupils, but the low level misbehaviour of some PP pupils must reduce, and a more positive motivated approach needs to be encouraged. A focus on positive behaviour across the school is important for PP this year, including raising motivation and engagement.
- The attainment of PP pupils must increase, and the gaps need to close. A focus on revision strategies, intervention, resilience, parental engagement and support is essential. In lower school, literacy and numeracy intervention needs to continue and be supported by Learning Support, to better prepare PP pupils for the GCSE courses.
